1 About Waste Business Journal

Waste Business Journal publishes newsletters, directories and reports, and performs customized research for the waste management industry. WBJ has served this industry for over seventeen years, during which time, the company has accumulated through direct survey and other means a great deal of historical and current industry economic data. Using its proprietary database of waste disposal facilities and companies, WBJ staff regularly analyze waste disposal trends including volumes, prices, and capacity and publishes these findings in a number of its regular reports (available in print and on-line). Waste Business Journal and its president, James Thompson are recognized nationally as leading authorities of the waste industry. The company consults to a variety of clients on issues of strategic, economic, regulatory, and policy issues related to waste management. The Company is located in San Diego CA and considers itself an industry consultant and member of the professional information publishing business.

1.1 About James Thompson, Jr.

James Thompson is President of Waste Business Journal, a research and consulting firm dedicated to the waste management industry. With over fifteen years of experience in the industry, he is a leading expert on waste issues, pricing and business trends in the US. In 1991, he founded Chartwell Information and created Solid Waste Digest, the industry's first and only true quantitative business newsletter. That required his development of the industry's most comprehensive database of pricing, volume and supply statistics.

Mr. Thompson regularly consults with clients on issues of strategic, economic, regulatory, and policy issues related to waste management. His clients include corporations, governments, and agencies of the federal government. He has consulted to every major solid waste firm in the U.S. Consequently, his views have been presented in the Wall Street Journal, the New York Times, the Economist and National Public Radio among many other media.

James Thompson is a graduate of Yale University and holds an MBA from Vanderbilt University.
